ness impossible, although the effort will exhaust both sides.

Special Session of Japanese Purliament Content of the Japanese parliament convened to consider war measures, was opcaed at Hiroshima yesterday by the Euperor in person.

In the speech from the throne opening the session, His Mylesty requested that the military measures presented should be disposed of with as little delay as possible. The Emperor expressed regret that through the obstinacy of China the peace of the east had been disturbed, adding, "But the war having commenced, we cannot cease operations until our object shall have been gained."

He also said he expected the members of Parilament to willingly agree to the government proposals, in the hope that thereby the Jupanese arms would be victorious throughout and pence be the somer restored, with additional lustre to the country.

In the bill submitted providing for increased expenditures for the army and many, the war expenses are estimated at $50,000,000 of which amounts $28,000,000 is to be taken from the government preserve fund.

Another bill introduced provides for raising a further Internal loan of $100,000,000,000 of which amounts $26,000,000,000 of which manuers with interest not to exceed eix per cont.

A resolution will be submitted by the Radicals under the terms of which the increase of the navy proposed at the fourth session shall now be accepted and executed as rapidly as possible.

The address of the Presidents of the two chambers of the Diet, in reply to the spect from the throne, concludes as follows

"Your Majesty rightly considers China an enemy to civilization and we comply with the imperial desire to destroy the barbarous obstinucy of that race."

No Republican should for a nomeric relax his effection before the form of the f Republicans who have a xeellent sour of information have made estimates of Lepullian majorities in the next House, ringing from their to thirty votes. The total membership of the House of Represe tatives is 156. In the present floure there are three valuancies two in the Maryland and one in the lyenncky delegation. The incumbents were Democrats, and those who will be chosen to succeed them may, and possibly will he of that party | Including these three vacancies, the political division of the present House stands Democrats, 218, Republicans, 127, Populists, 11

Democratic Falsehood.

The Philadelphia Press says The American public has witnessed rare and ingentous specimens of Democratic prevaricution, but the present exhibit of lying about the business atuation surasses all previous feats. In 1802 the American public were lied to by the emocratic press and fooled and bamnoozled into voting the Democratic party to power This confidence in Demoratic promises has cost the country housands of millions of dollars and reluced a land of affigence to destitution ithout any present sign of emerging nto even ordinary prosperity. Every omise made by the Democratic party as proved absolutely false up to the resent day. When they said Mr. Cleveand would do nothing to injure business hey were mistaken. When they prom-sed that the tariff discussion would not e harmful they knew they were not

When they say to-day that this con ry is prosperous they lie absolutely in order to make votes and to hoodwink the ibile. Price has fallen for the great aples and is yet falling. Iron, wool, taples and is yet falling. Iron, otton, wheat, have declined from what vere panic prices during the past three weeks. Railroad earnings during that period have been lower than in the Cleveand panic in 1803. The money market duller than it has been any time this ear. Wages are at the lowest point for thirty years and some of the necessities I life have actually divinced in price. Il these facts it dicate beyond the possibility of count that the country is in he slough of despond to which the Denieratic party brought it last year.

The whole Democratic programme is a failure. The result has fulfilled exactly he prophecies made by the Republicans the attempts to reform the tailf his nerrly bankrupted the nation and bert-gared the United States Treasury, and at this time there is no prospect of improvement in sight unless the people make up their minds to vote the disasrous Democrats out of power

Fairchild on Hill. Ex-Secretary Kajrehild, a man honored by President Cleveland in his first administration in a letter to a friend gives the following reasons for his opposition othe candidacy of Senator Hill. The fact that this is Democratic testimony lends especial interest to the letter You are quite mistaken in supposing that the opposition to Senator Hill is "personal," except in so far as his personality is involved in public act. I am not aware that any one of those who are active in the third ticket movement ha ative to the third ticket movement has ever had a personal difference with him, terrainly I have not, further, I under stand that he favored the admission of the New York had kings (county contesting the legation to representation in the latt Suratoga Constantion is a matter of policy and I have been given to an destand that he would taver a division of the local party representation in those counters in the luttice, should he now he successful and review the support of all reception room, library and writing room for his professional duties, the question whether the collector would apportion the rest of the chitre house hetween the living and the working part, and allow a deduction from professional moone of a fair proportion of the rent is a question on which collectors would be pretty sure to differ, unless instructed from head quarters. I should claim the deduction with confidence if the same man already owning the house should set apart the incressary rooms for his professional work, the claim that a part of the cost of the house was a incressary expense actually incurred in carrying on the business could not be sustained. If no should, within the year, buy a house larger than necessary for his living purposes, by reason of his professional pupulations, but it is not to determ with a liberal mindral collector, to establish his claim to deduct the additional cust of the house from the carmings of the year.

Other clauses of the Alt except salaries of State, county and minimicipal officers, and protect the dompensation of United States officers and servents, once taxed by the paymost r, from being ugain taxed by the collector. (Continued from Pirst Page)

Mr James S Spratt, of South Orrington, writ a use that he raised 400 bushels of applies this year. One tree had 25 bushels of good apples. He says that a good orchard pays every time. Dividends and Premiums The statute requires certain corporations to pay a tax on their net profits, and it provides that, although income, from dividends generally is taxable against the individual who receives them, the amount so received flow companies or absociations shall not be suitect to a second tax against the individual. In the enumeration of what is to be in cluded in estimating gains, profits, and income, the statute says, "the amount of all premium on bonds, notes, or coupone." This chuse is very budle drawn. Notes and coupons are rarely if even at a premium to tooks are not mentioned. Nor is it possible for any one but the Commissioner of Internal Revious, speaking officially (it even for him) at say what is meant, by "all primium". An intelligent commissioner is familiar with the rules of legislative, expression would never have drawn such a clause. In one never have drawn such a clause. In one sense, a person who buys bonds below pur which go up to a premium considers that he has made a profit while he still holds them, but it is not a gain, profit, or incopic, icceived Moreover, a men word may; make a profit on a transaction in bonds which never go to a premium, he may make a loss on a tiling bonds at a premium which he bongha still higher, and it is doubtful whether this imperfect chause adds anything to the efficacy of the statute. It seems trasonable to treatit as an observe and a lesse attempt at specification of a detail sufficiently iscertainable by the general primary clause. ne ver have drawn such a chuse at specification of a datal sufficiently isocrtainable by the general primary clause.

Real Estate Operations

The meaning of the phrase gains, profile, and income received in its application to operations in rule estate, is luterpreted by that clause of the statute which provides that in estimating the gains, profile and income there shall be included profits reabzed within the pear from sales of real estate purchased within two years previous to the clote of the year for which moone is estimated. An advance in value of real estate, therefore is not in itself tax ble, but only realized profits arising upon meals of property previously purchased, and even then the purchased within two years before the close of the tax of the and two then then the profit is not inxable if the purchase was mone than two years before the close of the tax of year of the tax of the and monout a sale are, to be deemed an amonout a certifical and a finally distributed and a contained question. If the property were sold without may formal security, and the renden had merely a prophes, with that equalible right of action known in the law as the vendon's lien, all would probably agree that the profit had not been acceived or realized. If the vendor should take from the purchaser the negatiable note of a third person as the equivalent of money, all would probably agree that the open to me received or realized, it the none was good and collectible, but it does not appear to me internal in Instrument to taken as the equivalent of money and the security by which the money may ultimately be received or realized, is in itself a profit realized.

Produces and Live Stock

Produced and Live Stock Produce and Live Stock

Produce and Live Stock Productions which are the growth or produce of the estate of any person, and the locrease of which, in a seine, is a guin, are not in themselves taxable, but the tax is on the amount of sales of the cost of purchase or production. The language of the statute on this point is as follows: "The amount of sales of live stock; sugar, cotton, wood, butter, cheese, pork, beef, mutton, or other ments, hay and grain, or other vegetable or other productions, being the growth or produce of the estate of such person, less the unount expended in the purchase or production of sale stock or produce, and but including any part theleof consumed directly by the famliy." The lutent of the statute papears to be, with regard to agricultural and live-stock productions, in allow ult he the sor constanted directly by the funily." The lutest of the statute appearait be, with regard to agricultural and live-stock productions, to allow all the furning expenses involved in his prodiuction to be deducted from theinggregate of prices received on the sales of the things so produced. Whether the expense of producing things of one kind, whilsh proved upportunitable or could not bused, is deductible from the amount of sules of things of another kind, is not expressly indicated; and, the frequent impracticability of accounting for the nost or production of each is paractally, opafirms the opinion that the general principle of construction smoothers and production as fo all such products on the estate of one person from the aggregate of sales.

Other Gains,

well as any amounts of money acquired by gift or inheritance, are gains tuxable under the statut, although they might not be within the ordinary acque of the words profit or income. And the stat-ute contains a general clause trixing "all other gains, profit, and income derived from any source whatever. This clause is broad enough to include all whaters of the same arranged account.

matters of the same general atters and of those previously counterated, such, for instance as money found and appropriated because no owner appears, money won by gaming of help or he a approprinted because no owner appears, money won by graing or bets or by a fletitions transaction in stocks, and pecuniary prizes in a competition. It is not broad enough to include real property inherited, and it is the better opin lon that it cannot include real property distant.
